TODAY'S AGENDA

- Background on disaster volunteers and the need for effective management
- How to use Volunteer Connect to create a virtual network for volunteer management
- Discussion on what this could look like for local United Ways and partners

THE DISASTER CYCLE

When a hazard affects Palm Beach County, United Way responds. As first responders work quickly to prevent loss of life and property, we coordinate donations and volunteers alongside county emergency management to provide needed resources to the community.

THE DISASTER CYCLE

As an event shifts away from protecting life, property, and the environment we begin the recovery phase, the process a community undertakes to return to a new normal. Volunteers are still needed during this phase for long-term projects such as home and school repair.

THE DISASTER CYCLE

And even before a hazard strikes we help agencies and households prepare by providing training and emergency supply kits. These are examples of measures taken before a hazard strikes a community to mitigate its effects.

Volunteer Florida-Volunteer Connect | <http://www.volunteerflorida.org>

Thank you for your willingness to serve Florida. Volunteers provide critical support during disaster response and recovery. Express interest below if you would like to be added to a listing of potential volunteers, available for our government and nonprofit partners active in disaster.

- For your safety and to support trained emergency response teams, please DO NOT SELF-DEPLOY.
- Immediate assistance for affected areas is provided by first responders, government groups, disaster relief organizations and affiliated volunteers who have already trained to serve.
- Each organization that mobilize volunteers during disasters has its own process for accepting and managing unaffiliated volunteers.
- As our partner organizations assess needs and evaluate resources, they will begin to organize volunteer opportunities for unaffiliated (individuals who are not already connected to an organization) volunteers.
- Remember that recovery work continues for weeks, months and even years after disaster events occur. Organizations may have a significant need for volunteers in the weeks and months ahead.
- Submitting contact information for the volunteer database does not guarantee participation in any volunteer opportunity.
